100% LIES & PROPAGANDA
• Americans are being lied to all the time by just about everybody

By John Friend

Americans are being lied to about virtually everything. The Covid pandemic, the war in Ukraine, the crisis along the U.S. southern border, the true rate of inflation, the state of the U.S. economy, the approval rating of the Biden administration—Americans are being openly deceived by the purveyors of information, which is obvious to readers of this independent newspaper.

U.S. officials have openly admitted to using deception and propaganda to deceive the public, particularly as it relates to Russia’s military operation in Ukraine.

In a revealing article published by NBC News, U.S. officials conceded that they are using “low-confidence intelligence” in their information war against Russia, which would explain some of the more incredible—and entirely baseless—claims U.S. officials have made about the Russian invasion of Ukraine.

But the information war is not limited to the conflict in Ukraine. Biden, whose approval ratings have tanked in recent months—rendering him and his administration one of the least popular in history—has insisted that inflation is under control, the U.S. economy is booming and unemployment is low. Of course, anyone living in the real world can see right through the president’s absurd, gaslighting claims.

Higher, as so-called core inflation excludes rising food, housing, energy and transportation costs that are hammering the working and middle class.

Given the extreme politicization of U.S. law enforcement and the justice system under the “woke” regime in Washington, Americans won’t even get the basic facts when it comes to violent crime and the true threats facing the country. Federal law enforcement have focused almost exclusively on the largely manufactured threat of “white supremacist” domestic extremism, ignoring the ugly reality of violent crime in America.

For example, the man identified by New York Police Department officials as the primary suspect in the recent mass shooting on a New York subway in Brooklyn was allegedly in the crosshairs of U.S. law enforcement going back to 2019 and had been arrested multiple times in multiple states over the years. He had a long history of espousing extreme anti-white, far-left political views that were posted on mainstream social media sites. Because he did not fit the FBI’s politically motivated description of what constitutes “domestic terrorism”—white, conservative, patriotic Americans—he fell off the radar, as countless violent criminals and terrorists have.

The Empire of Lies, as Russian President Vladimir Putin described the United States, is losing any sort of legitimacy in the eyes of the American and world public.

What other outcome could there be when the modus operandi of the messengers is to deceive the public to advance and justify a political or social agenda?

See pages 8-9

Western tales of Russian atrocities must be examined with critical eye.

See page 6

Drug cartels, corruption make life for Mexican people a nightmare.

See page 18

Stunning victory for defendants in FBI-orchestrated kidnap case.